

----- GENERAL NEWS -----

Hi All.

Today 100 Years ago 11-11-1918
Finally Peace after 4 years of horror.
A tribute to all who fell.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rKEcQITioOk>

Lets hope that all wars will end one day.

From " WUIVEND RIET " (1986) to " THE IMMORTAL TOURIST " (2018)
a concert by Johannes Schmoelling and Robert Waters is history.

Seldom have I in the 25 Years that I organize Concerts and Festivals had such a mesmerized crowd in a hall. The music was divine, the mix with the Grand Piano was brilliant and the 2.5 hours of music where over before the audience knew it. I want to thank Johannes and Robert and their crew for a memorable evening in The Enck. Those who where there will cherish this for a long time I think, I will for sure!

Thanks to the guys and girls from The Enck, my team, who are always helping me and Monique and Bert who makes these concerts and festivals possible by handling the stand!

But again most of all thanks to the audience, This was special.

Ron

We have the new Robert Schroeder - Spaceland in stock.

Press info:

Time to Relax - Time for SPACELAND

SPACELAND is the 39th solo album by the German sound artist Robert Schroeder, creative since 1979. Once discovered by EM pioneer Klaus Schulze, the synthesizer specialist once again presents an electronic CD with absolutely deep and relaxing space atmospheres.

After some excursions to other electronic styles on the Club Chill and recently on the New Frequencies series Schroeder returns again to 100% relaxing Electronic Music with a lot of spheres, new sounds, soundscapes, analog sequences, emotions and long tracks between 7 and 13 minutes. A special feature: All 8 tracks are musically interconnected. Fans of long EM tracks will have a great time when enjoying this 70 minutes lasting opus.

The eight tracks on the album: Space Discovery, Dream Garden, Terraforming, Ozone, Mineral Extractor, Upcoming Life and Transmission already suggest that the content describes the search for new habitat in distant galaxies. Incidentally, the title Dream Garden is also included on the CD as an extended version with a duration of over 13 minutes.

The music of Robert Schroeder is independent and incomparable to other artists. Spaceland is well balanced good Electronics Music that blends traditions and modern components ideally. Music, as you like it. Have much fun.

===== Reviews =====

68565 Parallel Worlds and Dave Bessell - Dystopia

"Cipher" welcomes the listener with a hypnotic dark soundscape. A mysterious melody is heard, as chirping sequences appear. A booming bass refrain is a welcome addition to this cerebral EM piece. All gets quiet approximately midway into the piece, only to return to dystopian, completely synthetic worlds that make you feel somewhat uncomfortable and yet are somewhat soothing. The track ends on a mysterious note, when the rhythm subsides and we are left with wobbling analog melodies reminding on early 20th Century EM (sort of like theremin maybe).

"Filament" creates a sort of a "Blade Runner"-esque atmosphere initially, with drawn-out pads, some fat analog timbres and effects, really bringing to mind those visions of a 2019 Los Angeles shown by Ridley Scott in his timeless classic. Little by little, an unhurried rhythm develops and then subsides to let the symphonic synths shine in all their glory. The rhythm then returns, this time in a sort of an IDM / d'n'b / broken rhythm way. The melodies towards the end of the track have something of an urgent quality to them.

"Underclouds" introduces a more positive and somewhat solemn note, making you think of a flight between heavy clouds and a dystopian city, but there is no fear or depression, rather a sense of exploration and wonder. The base for the track are the already familiar slow rhythms and various chirping analog sounds.

On "Into the Distance", a weirder soundscape is introduced, reminding on cyberworld dystopias. However, the march-like part that follows brings back memories of Vangelis again. This is never a bad thing, though. A mysterious melody follows, bringing one's imagination back to the cyberworld ("Tron", anyone?). Some guitar strumming can be heard, supported by nice, rich synth pads. I would say that this is the most melodically charged piece so far.

"Forest of Stars" is more reflective, but at the same time more cosmic. Wow, great track, indeed. Those slow rhythms and great melodies is something to just sit back, listen to and enjoy, letting your mind drift away. The guitar work on this track is also great and complements well the electronic soundscape. This is also closer to melodic British school EM than the purely experimental / hypnotic EM this duo is known for.

On the other hand, "Mutagen" is anything but relaxing. The melodies here have an urgent character to them, the rhythms are assertive and echoing and overall the track is much more in their typical style. I really like the use of guitar in this one.

"Devoid" is a shorter piece that starts with rich synthesizer sounds that once again remind on "Blade Runner". Then a mysterious piano melody appears, which forms the basis for the rest of the track's duration.

"Mycelium" is more upbeat, or at least more assertive, with more solemn melody and a somewhat marching rhythm. Then follows a beat-less section with some guitar playing. That one is pretty brief, though, and we soon return to marching rhythm / synth melodies combination. This time the melodies have something of a Middle-Eastern flair to them. Some frippertronics-like wailing guitars and bass synth chords bring this nice disc to a close.

Overall, I found this a album a moody affair, with some very effective bits and some variety brought to the electronic soundscapes by means on electric guitar. It is an excellent release for those who enjoy the darker, moodier forms of EM, but will also be enjoyed by fans of melodies, as there is enough melodic content as well. Highly recommended. Best tracks: "Into the Distance", "Forest of Stars".
