

----- GENERAL NEWS -----

Hello All

Here are 2 new exciting releases from Groove Unlimited!!

<http://www.groove.nl/index3.html>

GR-271 - Fritsch, Eloy - JOURNEY TO THE FUTURE (cd)

Known for his more progressive EM with big synth leads and fast progressive drums his music was very Proggy at times!!

Now we have Eloy's very first real Synth music release.

Much in the Style of Vangelis and Jarre it features an array of great songs.

The music has the sound and the production of the big names, at times you think you are listening to a new Vangelis album! Beautiful!

Release date: May 2019

GR-272 - Frank Doritkke - NIKO (cd)

The first Frank Doritkke album, a concept album. Brilliant!

== There it is, my first concept album ... "NIKO".

No typical F.D.Project album ... "A musical Journey" with complete new sounds and sound designs in it.

10 Songs merged into one musical story.

But what is NIKO ?

NIKO is what you make of it.

For me it is a 55 minutes dream full of hope, happiness ... but also of fear and sadness.

A soundtrack for the mind ... without a movie.

10 Songs ... 10 Titles ... Let's start your dream.

Frank. ==

Release date: May 2019

<http://www.groove.nl/index3.html>

Ian Boddy - Altair (digipak) (2-cd)

His live performances in the USA of last year.

Stunning release!

Peter Mergener - Astronaut (cd)

A brilliant new Mergener is always a treat.

This Album is among his best ever!!

Scholl, Bernd - One Earth One Sky (cdr)

A limited edition release made with great passion.

Beautiful music.

Steve Roach - Atmosphere for Dreaming (digipak) (cd)

Steve Roach - Heliosphere (digipak) (cd)

2 Great releases that will be loved by many as among the best Roach releases since years.

Tangerine Dream - Official Bootleg Series 3 (digipak) (4-cd)

The third in a series of TD 'official bootlegs'.

This volume features recordings made at the Ford Auditorium in Detroit, USA in March 1977 and at the Regent Theatre, Sydney, Australia in February 1982 and contains over four hours of music ..

The concert in Detroit has gone down in Tangerine Dream history as a legendary event. The music performed by Edgar Froese, Christopher Franke and Peter Baumann featured Froese's extensive use of electric guitar in a truly blistering set. The concert at the Regent Theatre in Sydney is from the next stage of Tangerine Dream's career, featuring a line-up of Edgar Froese, Christopher Franke and Johannes Schmoelling and provides another excellent example of the excellence of Tangerine Dream on stage.

This official 4CD clamshell boxed set has been remastered from the best available sources and includes an illustrated booklet with an essay.

Thanks for your time!

Ron Boots

21285 Roach, Steve - Heliosphere

Composed in collaboration with Radiant Mind, HELIOSPHERE is another magical work by Steve Roach. Presented in 8 acts for a total of 66 minutes, the music seems destined for another meditation exercise so much that it follows the bends of abandonment, absorption and awakening phases. The masses of wind, drones and synth lines with tonal variations prioritize an envelope where lyricism prevails over the mutism or the apathy of a knot of static lines. The result is a really nice relaxing music worthy of the best opuses from the American musician. And I always ask myself this question; how can Steve Roach be so good year after year?

A distant wind joins our ears in the opening "Sphere 1". Following some phantom inclination, this rush of warm winds gently boils in a fiery sky where our ears are victims of an auditory mirage with these threads of missing voices humming an extinguished chant. Hollow winds complete this symphony for Aeolus, while waving synth lines and sound stars sing some seraphic verses. These elements form a fascinating melody of just two seconds that recurs tirelessly between those multilayers and their slow mass movements that take a darker tangent with the arrival of the drones in "Sphere 2". These drones are the equivalent of chants that the natural channels of ventilation carve between the stalagmites of a cave. A slight mutation in the tones gives a duller sonic image, a more austere one to "Sphere 3", while that "Sphere 4" seems to get out of the dark caverns with an appearance that flirts with the seraphic side of aerial waves from Steve Roach's universe to reach a greater musicality with "Sphere 5" which casts an aura of even more palpable emotionality in HELIOSPHERE. The dark breezes resound again in "Sphere 6" which activates the first line of rhythm in this collaboration of Steve Roach & Radiant Mind. A circular movement intrigues our hearing a little after the 8th minute. The sequenced r i t ornello gets lost in the abyss before returning to charm the rattling that amplifies their presence with continual felted beats in "Sphere 7". This phase of rhythm articulated in creativity is like a lunar trance that hops like a stubborn one-legged who is frantic and with a good line of powder in the nostrils. Each knock reflects an echo that draws a long line of static rhythm that lives over 6 minutes before cavernous breaths mute down the excitement of HELIOSPHERE in a veil of serene ambiences and awakenings of "Sphere 8". Yes! Still I'm wondering how can Steve Roach be so good year after year?

☐ gr-251 Free System Projekt - Procyon

On this Free System Project album (originally released as a download album in 2009 but now re-released as a CD by Dutch EM label Groove Unlimited) Marcel plays an Access Virus A (synthesizer module) and a Yamaha A3000 (hardware sampler) with Mellotron and Stringensemble sets, Ruud the Alesis Fusion HD (a 88-key synthesizer workstation) with Mellotron and Stringensemble sets, wow, 'a vintage keyboard maniac's wet dream', perfect gear to produce the unsurpassed 74-77 Tangerine Dream sound that the duo embraces. As we can hear on their many previous efforts, my favourite one is Okefenokee Dreams, recorded live at a Tangerine Dream fans meeting in the USA, in 2001.

1. Procyon (27.55) : After a spacey intro with SF sounds and the usual beep and bleeps a dreamy Mellotron flute and soaring synthesizer strings join. Then majestic low sounding Mellotron violins, gradually the music turns into more dynamic. In a wonderful way the Mellotrons and synthesizers of the two musicians blend, culminating in a very lush and exciting electronic music atmosphere. Suddenly it's sequencer time, around 15 minutes long, accompanied by first a high pitched Mellotron flute and flashy synthesizer flights, and then sumptuous Mellotron choirs, this is top notch electronic music, obviously inspired by 74-77 Tangerine Dream but with an own touch. The final part delivers fading sequencers and mellow Mellotron flutes and synthesizer strings.

2. Procyon (14.20) : First scary sound effects, then pulsating sequencers and the focus on synthesizer flights. Halfway deep sounding sequencing and lush Mellotron choirs that colour the music in compelling way, goose bumps! After an interlude with high a pitched Mellotron flute this composition ends with strings and a fading Mellotron violin sound.

3. And Then There Were Two (20.15) : After the usual spacey sounds and beep and bleeps the music delivers soaring Mellotron flutes and strings with a phaser sound, a wonderful dreamy climate. Then a deep synthesizer sound and majestic Mellotron choirs, now the sequencing joins, the combination with the Mellotron choirs turns into a very spectacular sound, this is Electronic Music heaven! After a mellow interlude with soaring Mellotron flutes the atmosphere changes into bombastic with synthesizers flights, the use of the pitchbend button is sensational! The dreamy outro delivers tender Mellotron flute runs. Simply beautiful (and it tastes way more better than And Then There Were Three!).

If you are into the unsurpassed electronic music of 74-77 Tangerine Dream don't miss this warm tribute from one of the best Dutch EM projects!

15694 Tangerine Dream - Sessions 3

This CD Sessions III is my first musical encounter with the post-Edgar Froese Tangerine Dream era. And I am pleasantly surprised, to me the music sounds as a wonderful blend of 75-80 Tangerine Dream sound (my favourite TD music) and ambient. Both tracks are very long (in the old days this would have been a double vinyl album) but succeed to keep my attention, due to flowing shifting moods and tasteful work on the synthesizers, sequencers, percussion and electric violin/viola. The one moment it's soaring strings and Mellotron flutes, a hypnotizing blend of violin/viola, synthesizers and sequencers, dreamy with piano or a distorted (like wah-wah) electric violin solo. The other moment we can enjoy pulsating sequencers, tender violin/viola and assorted percussion or mellow piano and percussion and final parts with dreamy strings and beautiful violin/viola play.
